Subject: University of Florida Practice on Standardized Start-up and Administrative Fees or Industry-Sponsored Clinical Trials

The University of Florida through the Office of Clinical Research has established a standardized fee schedule for industry-sponsored clinical trials. These fees (start-up and recurring) are industry-wide practices, and represent the true costs of administering support for clinical trials conducted at the University. These standardized fees are non-negotiable and are charged uniformly across all industry sponsors. The UF Office of Clinical Research collects median data and information from peer institutions regarding these standardized fees, and has confirmed that the fees for the University of Florida are quite competitive and provide value to our industry partners (as compared to other sites).

These standardized fees are subject to change in the future as continued industry analysis and data from our peers warrants those adjustments. The Office of Clinical Research will limit those changes to no more often than once annually.

Sincerely,

Brian J. Sevier, Ph.D.
