

For studies that have had many IRB reviews and/or many uploaded documents, the IRB Review section can get very busy. It may take practice and exposure before you can quickly identify a particular review and its attached documents.

Here is an example of a study that has had four reviews, which are summarized in the IRB reason counts at the top of the page:

- One Initial Review
- One Other Review
- Two Revision Reviews

The screenshot shows the IRB Review Reason Counts table at the top, which is summarized below:

	Adverse Event	Continuing Review	Deviation	Initial Review	myIRB Transfer	Other	Revision	Study Closure
Pending	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0
Total	0	0	0	1	0	1	2	0

Below the summary table is the IRB Action History section, which lists four reviews in reverse date order. The reviews are highlighted with red boxes and numbered 1 through 4:

Review No.	Review Date	Submit Date	IRB Committee	Review Reason	Review Type	Action	Action Date	Expiration Date	Delete?
4	11/09/2016	11/09/2016	WIRB	Other	Exempt	Exempt	11/09/2016		<input type="checkbox"/>
3	11/08/2016	11/08/2016	WIRB	Revision	Expedited	Approved	11/08/2016		<input type="checkbox"/>
2	11/07/2016	11/07/2016	WIRB	Revision	Full	Approved	11/07/2016	11/07/2019	<input type="checkbox"/>
1	10/15/2016	10/15/2016	WIRB	Initial Review	Full	Approved	10/15/2016	10/15/2019	<input type="checkbox"/>

The list of documented reviews is displayed in reverse date order, with the first review appearing at the bottom of the page, and the most recent review always showing at the top of the history section.

Practice finding each of these reviews and the attached documents in the example above:

4. 11/09/2016 Other Review is the most recent review. It has a Web Ad document attached.
3. 11/08/2016 Revision Review is third from the bottom. It has an IRB Approval Letter and two consents attached (TX Cohort A Version 1 and TX Cohort B Version 1).
2. 11/07/2016 Revision Review is second from the bottom. It has one consent attached (TX Version 2).
1. 10/15/2016 Initial Review is on the bottom of screen. It has one consent attached (TX Version 1).
